ACTION MAINTAINS PRESIDENT'S POWER

Killed Measure Transferred Rate-Making Control From White House to Congress.

BY HENRY F. MISSELWITZ.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(UP)—The democratic tariff bill, vetoed and criticized by President Hoover as one that would spread "misinformation and uncertainty" in business, was killed in the house today.

The house voted to sustain the president's veto immediately after it had been read later today Mr. Hoover cited numerous objections to the measure and added:

"It is enough, however, that this bill would destroy the effectiveness of the flexible tariff, which for the first time gives protection against excessive or inadequate tariffs."

The vote, 178 to 166, in favor of the veto left short of the two-thirds majority necessary to nullify the president's action.

The measure which brought Mr. Hoover's first major veto of the congressional session provided: That the tariff commission recommend any proposed alterations in import duties to congress instead of to the president; that an international tariff conference be called for consideration of lowered trade barriers; that the president negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with other nations; that a consumer's council be created to represent the public in tariff commission hearings.

Major Objections.
The president's four major objections were:

1.—That the bill would convey misimpression and uncertainty as to its purpose.

2.—That it practically destroys the "flexible" tariff.

3.—That it carries stipulations for action in an international tariff conference which would restrict and prevent success of such a conference.

4.—That the bill includes a request that the president negotiate reciprocal trade agreements "under a policy of mutual tariff concessions," but that this is "in direct conflict" with other proposals in the same bill to eliminate discriminatory tariffs, and other phases, all of which latter are desirable.

The president declared that if the proposals of the act wanted to lower tariffs on the "35 per cent of our imports which are not on the free list," it would be "in direct conflict" with the "direct and simple method" of "this bill, which would be to reduce duties on such particular commodities as are believed to be at fault."

Other Nations.
He pointed out that the depression had affected not only the United States but foreign nations, and that they, after abandoning the gold standard, "are producing goods and paying for raw materials in depreciated currency." In this vein, the president said:

"Under such conditions, it is imperative that the American protective policy be maintained, and that the effect of the proposed bill be to remove the possibility of executive action or to reduce tariff protection, there never was a more appropriate occasion on account of widespread domestic unemployment and the possibilities which lie before us."

Mr. Hoover said he was "in full accord" with any proposal for an international tariff conference, but that the tariff conferences in which America has participated since the great war "have resulted in very little accomplishment."

The president outlined the history of America's tariff regulations, and insisted that the traditional policy of maintaining the "most favored nation" clause in commercial treaties should be maintained. He stated that the executive should retain his present authority relative to the tariff regulations and the tariff commission, the president concluded.

"It (the bill) would surrender our own control of an important part of our domestic affairs to the influence of other nations, or alternatively would lead us into the facilities in international negotiations."

"It would start our country upon the road of a system of preferential tariffs between nations, with all the trade wars, international entanglements, etc., which our country has sought to avoid by extending equal treatment to all of them."

Teaspoonful of Whisky To Cost Alabamian $50

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 11.—(AP)—The possession of a teaspoonful of whisky appears likely to go to cost Porter Henson, of Winston county, $50 plus.

The Alabama court of appeals yesterday ruled "it is inconceivable that the legislature intended the prohibition law to apply to the possession of a teaspoonful of whisky when that quantity could not in any manner affect the moral, health or well being of any person."

But, a technically prevented the body from granting Henson a new trial and his fine of $50 and costs for possessing the teaspoonful of whisky under discussion was allowed to stand.

JAPANESE RECALL REMAINING FORCES IN SHANGHAI AREA

Emperor Approves Decision of Cabinet To Withdraw Troops and End 'Worldwide Odium'

TOKYO, May 11.—(AP)—The Japanese government announced today that in order to end the worldwide odium which has fallen upon it, the remaining members of the Shanghai expeditionary force will be withdrawn within a month.

About 15,000 Japanese troops still are in Shanghai. When they have been evacuated only a small detachment of bluejackets will remain there.

The decision to evacuate was made by the cabinet yesterday and was approved by Emperor Hirohito this afternoon. As soon as the emperor had given his consent orders were issued for the withdrawal of the troops.

General Yoshinori Shirakawa, the commander at Shanghai, said:

"Since the decision was made to a desire to conform with world opinion and to end the worldwide odium which has fallen upon us, Japan will hold these troops accountable if Shanghai is damaged."

These other nations are the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy, whose representatives signed the Sino-Japanese armistice agreement reached last week.

The withdrawal will mean a return to conditions as they existed before the outbreak at Shanghai last January, which cost thousands of lives, both Chinese and Japanese, and the destruction of millions of dollars' worth of property.

Filipino Found Guilty, Given 10 to 15 Years

FORTUONATO AMANCIANO, Filipino yo-yo demonstrator, late Wednesday night was found guilty of criminal assault of a 14-year-old high school girl and sentenced to serve from 10 to 15 years in the penitentiary. The verdict was returned by a jury in Judge Virlyn H. Moore's division of the Fulton superior court after deliberating less than an hour.

The state presented three witnesses, including the alleged victim, The Filipino, whose statement was all the testimony offered by the defense. He denied the accusation. Amby Subia, fellow yo-yo demonstrator, is under indictment on a similar charge. He alleged offense took place several months ago in a Washington street apartment.

F. Joe Turner Jr., counsel for Amanciano, announced that a motion for a new trial would be filed in a few days. The case was prosecuted by Assistant Solicitors E. A. Stephens and J. Walter McCraw.

7 Officials Indicted By Florida Grand Jury

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 11.—(AP)—The Duval county grand jury today returned indictments against five justices of the peace, one constable and a deputy sheriff.

With one exception the indictment charged malpractice in office and dealt with alleged illegal acceptance of sums of money from persons with whom the officers were dealing in an official capacity.

At the same time, the grand jury in a lengthy presentment reported it found "a startling state of affairs" in the general investigation of officers of justices of the peace. Removal of some of the justices by the governor was suggested. Abolition of the system by the legislature was urged.

W. D. Anderson Denies Rift Between Board and Soule

Reported differences between Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, and the board of regents, which were the subject of considerable gossip at the stationhouse Tuesday prior to the reelection of Dr. Soule by the board, were denied by W. D. Anderson, chairman of the board, in an interview in Macon Wednesday.

Dr. Soule was re-elected to the position of president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, which he has filled since the year 1920.

Anderson said, "Nothing but harmony and good will exist. The interests of the Georgia farmer and farm woman will be even better served and this really was the purpose for which the meeting was called."

Atlanta correspondence of the Macon Telegraph of Wednesday carried the following with reference to the board meeting:

"The board of regents of the university system, meeting in Atlanta today, had Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, on the carpet in a matter involving serious differences of opinion said to surround the matter of the annual budget for certain co-operative work carried on through the college."

FRANCE EXPECTED SOON TO RENOUNCE POLISH ALLIANCE

Move Seen as Friendly
Gesture Toward Germany; Socialists May Bar Herriot as Premier.

BY WALLACE CARROLL.

PARIS, May 11.—(UP)—Two unexpected developments today threatened to change the entire government situation resulting from the victory of Edouard Herriot's radical-socialist party in the legislative elections.

1. The social party, which with the Herriot faction controls the lower "left wing" of the chamber of deputies, announced a political program which may make it impossible for Herriot to accept their aid in forming a new government.

2. It was learned that France is soon expected to renounce her military alliance with Poland, marking the first break with French military satellites in eastern Europe.

The proposal to end the alliance with Poland may have far-reaching repercussions. The agreement has been a constant source of apprehension to Germany and was a part of the so-called encircling of Germany by France and her central European allies.

Strategic Reasons Cited.
The French general staff was understood to disapprove of the agreement with Poland on strategic grounds. France has not been able to persuade Marshal Joseph Pilsudski the Polish dictator, that the bulk of Polish troops and war supplies should be concentrated on the German frontier in event of trouble.

Pilsudski spent his early life working against Russian imperialism and checked the bolshevik advance on Warsaw in 1920—one of Leon Trotsky's few military failures—and consequently he believes Russia the greatest menace to Poland.

The terms of the Franco-Polish agreement are secret, but it was once described as purely defensive in nature. It may be denounced by either party after June 20, when it expires if not renewed.

It also was known that the left wing parties, now coming into power, are hostile to the agreement and would like to renounce it as a friendly gesture toward Germany.

Socialist Demands.
Meanwhile, the socialist demands on Herriot included:

1. Reduction of the national debt by about 6,000,000,000 francs.

2. Creation of national unemployment insurance.

3. Guarantee that railway passenger fares will not be increased.

The socialists failed to make reduction of German reparations a condition, as was expected, but they said their demands must be accepted or rejected by the radical-socialists. It would be difficult for Herriot to accept the demands, which would put further heavy burdens on the top-heavy budget.

As a result Herriot may not be the first premier in the new parliament. A compromise may be made which would put some such man as Paul Painleve in power under Herriot's guidance.

BITTER RIFT PAGES OVER GLASS' CLAIM

Britten Shouts "Lie" to Charges and Kean Accuses Virginian's Aide.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Banking legislation today embroiled congress in a raging dispute which produced charges of lying and an accusation that a senate committee employed had divulged confidential information to the detriment of American business.

In the face of vehement denials, Chairman Glass, of the senate banking committee, clung insistently to his accusation that certain banking interests bought a member of the house in their fight against the branch banking restrictions of the McFadden act of 1927.

Senator Kean, of New Jersey, whose voice is seldom heard in debate, asserted that Dr. H. Parker Willis, economist for Glass' committee, sent cablegrams to French newspapers.

2 Carried into Air and Killed As Akron Breaks From Crew

10,000 See Men Fall to Deaths; Another of Crew Saved After Dangling on Rope for Two Hours.

CAMP KEARNEY, Cal., May 11.—(AP)—A tragic drama of the skies was written in an unsuccessful attempt of the world's largest airship, the U. S. S. Akron, to land here today.

Two men of the mooring crew were dashed to death and a third, Bud Cowart, was carried two hours dangling on a 300-foot rope from the great navy airship.

Ten thousand spectators saw the two fall as the dirigible surged upward. Cowart swung precariously half a mile over their heads. Women screamed, men wept.

Then he was rescued, hauled into a hatch of the big ship. A message dropped from the big bag, "Cowart O. K.," it read.

A vast sigh of relief went up. "Fifty air accidents have I seen, but none that chilled the heart like this," said Joe Van Dusen, aircraft veteran.

The tear-stained faces of navy and marine veterans who were ribbons testifying to battlefield experiences, testified to this.

The climax to the westward crossing of the Akron, which left Lakehurst, N. J., early Sunday on its first continental trip, came during efforts to make an emergency mooring at Camp Kearney after an aerial voyage fraught with storms.

Several attempts to bring the great dirigible down here failed. A determined crowd grew when upward currents suddenly caught the great ship.

Robert Edfall and Nigel Henton, both of the San Diego naval training station, and Cowart clung to the landing line the horizon. The dirigible throng as the Akron surged upward. Edfall and Henton lost their grip and fell to death but Cowart clung on.

Upward the ship swung, with Cowart dangling on the line 300 feet below the dirigible. A height of 2,000 feet was reached but Cowart maintained his precarious grip. Through bumpy air the Akron sailed but Cowart clung on.

"Will try to land man on tail rope," was the crisp message Commander C. E. Rosendahl dropped to the ground. Cowart at that time had been hanging to the rope for more than an hour. He held on with a "wooden hand" used by members of the ground crew to grip the landing cables. He also had a foothold on the line.

Minutes that seemed like hours to the gasping crowd below passed as the Akron cruised through bumpy air, rising up and down, with the plucky Cowart dragging along. Then it was noted that the distance between Cowart and the Akron began slowly to diminish. As this would be possible, it was realized efforts were being made to pull him through a cockpit.

There was no winch on the rope. It was slow work hoisting Cowart up by hand. At last he was dragged through a cockpit and a mighty cheer burst from 10,000 throats far below. The dirigible then headed southward to the rope for more than an hour. When Commander Rosendahl said he would make another effort to land.

While Cowart was dangling aloft fire apparatus had been rushed to the field and great nets spread for him to drop on should the ship be maneuvered to land. The dirigible then headed southward to the rope for more than an hour. When Commander Rosendahl said he would make another effort to land.

The accident came on the fourth day of the Akron's projected trip from Lakehurst to Sunnyvale, near San Francisco, to take part in maneuvers of the United States fleet, now in San Francisco bay. It was the air liner's longest voyage and difficult landing here since she crossed into western Texas to be bailed by

BANKING IN SOUTH SHOWS PROGRESS

Near-Cessation in Fail- ures in Southern States Indicated in Survey.

BALTIMORE, May 11.—(AP)—Material progress in the banking situation in the south for the past several months, with several states reporting bank failures, have practically ceased, is noted by the Manufacturers Record.

Banking departments of some states report many banks have been able to resume operations. The Record says the assistance of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is generally recognized as largely responsible for the results achieved.

J. R. Dorman, Kentucky banking administrator, reports that for the six weeks ending April 30 there have been no state bank failures, and of 18 banks closed between January 1 and the end of April, three have reopened.

R. E. Gormley, Georgia superintendent of banks, wrote that banking conditions in Georgia are better than for the past several months.

The superintendent of banks for Mississippi, J. S. Love, reported "our people have gone to work and they realize that only by hard work and close economy can they improve their position. We have had 75 bank closings in Mississippi; carrying total deposits of $18,000,000. We have been able to reopen 43 of these banks on a sound basis, carrying total deposits of a little more than $12,000,000. He expressed optimism for the future."

R. G. Dickinson, assistant commissioner, state bank department of Arkansas, wrote that since the Reconstruction Finance Corporation began to function only one small bank has closed in his state and six have reopened. The Florida comptroller, Ernest Amor, said cash deposits increased in his state.

Banking officials of Alabama, South Carolina, Louisiana, Virginia and North Carolina reported improved conditions in their states.

"Last Word on Circulation"

The three Atlanta daily and Sunday newspapers belong to what is known as the Audit Bureau of Circulations. The circulation audit of the three Atlanta papers, covering the last audit period, has just been released.

This audit shows that the daily Constitution has the largest total city circulation, largest total city and suburban, and largest grand total of any daily paper published in Atlanta.

It is a recognized fact among advertisers that carrier or home delivery circulation in the city is the most worthwhile circulation to the advertiser.

This audit shows the daily Constitution to have carrier or home delivery circulation of 40,497 in the city of Atlanta, which is about 5,000 larger than the second paper in home delivery circulation, and about 13,000 larger than the third paper.

This audit also shows the Sunday Constitution has a larger city circulation and a larger suburban circulation, and a larger total city and suburban than either of the other Atlanta Sunday newspapers. This audit is recognized as the last official word on circulation.

RUSSELL'S ATTACK ON 'DRAFT' EFFORT PUZZLES M'INTOSH

Albany Editor Says He Consulted Some of Gov- ernor's 'Closest Friends' Before Making Move.

BY R. E. POWELL.

A backfire from Governor Richard B. Russell's definite decision to remain in the race for the United States senate engaged Georgia politicians Wednesday.

Associated Press dispatches from Albany quoted liberally from an editorial written by Henry T. McIntosh, editor of the Albany Herald and Governor Russell's appointee on the board of control. McIntosh took the lead in the unsuccessful effort to get Governor Russell to run for a second term as governor.

"The governor's statement Tuesday that his friends are not deceived by this propaganda," the Herald editorial said, "is rather difficult to understand. What was attempted was inspired from quarters intimately close and friendly to him. It was, admittedly, a forlorn hope, but it seemed worth pursuing, and the editor of the Herald has no excuses to make or apologies to offer for the part he played in it. His interest was altogether for Governor Russell."

Reviewing efforts made by the Herald editor to have candidates for governor release Governor Russell from his implied promise that he would not again be a candidate for the office he now holds, the editorial recited that the editor of the Herald sent to the four candidates for governor was so approved.

"Governor Russell was not asked to approve the move," the editorial says, "for that would have embarrassed him. But what the editor of the Herald undertook had the full approval of some of the governor's very closest friends and political advisors. Even the text of the telegram sent to the four candidates for governor was so approved."

Sentiment "Underestimated."
"We are afraid," Editor McIntosh said in his paper, "the governor underestimates the extent and significance of the sentiment in the press for his continuance in his present office. It was in recognition of that sentiment, definitely friendly to the governor, that the editor of the Herald attempted to make it possible for him to reconsider his decision."

"No intimation," the editorial continued, "was given to the press of the approach to the four candidates for governor, three of whom sent prompt replies. Tuesday's statement by the governor that he will remain in the race of course closes the case, though we are confident that the correct course on our appraisal of the situation precipitated by the untimely death of Senator Harris will in time be proven."

In an editorial in Tuesday's Herald.

MEANS IS FREED ON $50,000 BOND

Ex-Prisoner Alleged To Have Received $100,000 From Mrs. Shepard.

MEANS AND WOMAN STOPPED OVER HERE

Department of justice agents checking the story of Gaston B. Means concerning his now famous "quest" for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby discovered here Wednesday that Means and an employee of Mrs. Edward B. McLean, Washington society leader, stopped overnight in Atlanta on their way to El Paso where Means had told Mrs. McLean he was to make contact with the alleged kidnappers.

F. D. Gray, clerk at the Terminal hotel, said that Means and a woman who registered as "Miss Nelson, Baltimore, Md.," stopped at the hotel on the night of April 1, arose early the next morning and said they were taking the 6:10 o'clock train for New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Gaston B. Means, under indictment charging embezzlement of $104,000 from Mrs. Edward B. McLean, and under suspicion in connection with allegations that he mulcted as much from another society woman, said to be Mrs. Finley Shepard, the former Helen Gould, by promising anti-communist protection, was free to-night on $50,000 bail. The amount was in separate bonds of $25,000 each. It is not known how much cash Means put up. The bond was signed by Isaac B. Jones and Milton S. Krown, Baltimore, Md.

The huge, dimpled detective strode from jail after Justice James M. Proctor ordered his release on bonds in the District of Columbia supreme court.

Means stepped into his own limousine and was driven with his youth.

Woman Given Reward For Brother's Arrest

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(UP)—A woman who gave police information that led to the arrest of her brother on a charge of murder, is entitled to the reward of $1,000 for his capture, the district supreme court ruled here Tuesday.

Mrs. Gertrude Murphy told authorities she surprised her brother, William Joseph Carnal, washing his blood-stained shirt at her home after the murder of Louis Bush, wealthy bus proprietor.

Carnal was arrested and convicted. He is serving a life term. Ten persons claimed the reward.

$300,000,000 CUT IN U. S. EXPENSES IS SOLONS' GOAL

Special Economy Group Discusses Slashes After Receiving Hoover Pledge of Co-operation.

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Determined legislators set down today on Capitol Hill to carve $300,000,000 from government expenditures with the personal promise from President Hoover of full co-operation.

The senate's special economy committee went to work behind closed doors after talking things over at the breakfast table with the president and his fiscal aides. The goal of $300,000,000 was mutually acceptable to Mr. Hoover and the senators.

As the economy drive went ahead, the other twin of the budget balancing legislative team—the billion dollar tax bill—was brought to the verge of consideration with the presentation of a report to the senate by the finance committee.

Senate leaders hope to take it up tomorrow. One more day may be allowed for the pending Glass banking measure, but Friday is the deadline for action on the revenue bill.

The finance committee made a last-minute change in the tax bill today, eliminating the 5-cent per pound import duty on rubber and substituting for it levies of 3 cents a pound on tire casings, including solid tires, and 5 cents a pound on inner tubes.

Repeal of the omnibus economy measure sent over to the senate by the house is the apparent goal of the bi-partisan senate committee.

The president sent Director of the Budget Rop from the White House breakfast table to work with the committee.

Secretary Mills and Walter Newton, executive secretary of the president, also were at the White House breakfast table.

Mr. Hoover did not press upon the senate group a specific program. He urged co-operation and talked of alternative proposals.

The senate committee itself gave

SENATORS ADOPT PROTOCOL PROVISION

Formal Committee Vote on World Court Issue Is Expected Today.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—The senate foreign relations committee today adopted the Moses reservation to the World Court protocol requiring formal approval by the other powers of the United States' position against advisory opinions before American adherence can become effective.

Chairman Borah announced that a poll of the committee showed the reservation of Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, was approved by a vote of 11 to 10.

A reservation by Senator Johnson, republican, California, reiterating the senate's position against advisory opinions, was defeated, 11 to 9. Advocates of the court say the reservation is unnecessary under the revised Root protocol now pending.

The committee will vote tomorrow on the protocol.

Columnist Cites Precedents For Making Crisp Senator

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—In an interesting article appearing in a current issue of the Washington Herald, George Rothwell Brown, a nationally known columnist and long a close observer of national political affairs, points out that Georgia, in the event it promotes Representative Charles R. Crisp to the senate, will go back to the first congress under the present constitution for a precedent.

"Whether Georgia is to follow historic precedent, and send Crisp to the senate, is of particular and practical interest at the present time, not only to Washington, but to the country at large. The interest is not what would be called primarily political."

The finance committee of the senate needs some new blood. It particularly needs it on the democratic side of that committee, if the democratic party is to obtain control of the senate in the next elections, and hold it for any length of time. The finance committee, issues today being what Normal temperature is to the committee in the senate, second not even to foreign relations. It should be fortified with stronger men, especially from the ways and means committee of the house.

"Crisp, of Georgia, risen to a place of great prominence in consequence of his splendid fight for a balanced budget and a sane tax law, has arrested the attention of the country. What

ARKANSAN OFFERS PLAN TO BOLSTER CONDITIONS IN U. S.

Huge Direct Relief and Construction Proposal Is Outlined as Move To Solve Economic and Em- ployment Situation.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—The powerful support of Senator Robinson, Arkansas, today was thrown solidly behind a new move for federal relief for the unemployed.

From the democratic leader of the senate came a broad plan for relieving suffering and aiding economic recovery through a $300,000,000 relief fund and a $2,000,000,000 construction program by bond issues.

He emphasized the need of balancing the budget and proposed that his program should be financed by bond issues.

Robinson also proposed a 30-hour week, application of the equalization fee to wheat as a test, and loans from the Reconstruction Corporation to farm loan organizations, as measures to aid in the restoration of prosperity. He said the fear of unemployment has "chilled every heart" and presented a "crisis" to the nation.

Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, former member of the Hoover cabinet, offered a resolution to authorize loans up to $500,000,000 by the Reconstruction Corporation to states and cities for unemployment relief. He said later the legislation was not recommended by the administration.

Later a group of 10 democratic senators pledged themselves to support the legislation and taxing of beer to finance a $1,500,000,000 construction program.

In a formal statement, Senator Costigan, democrat, Colorado, long an advocate of federal aid, said Robinson's statement and the bill introduced by Davis "show a long and broad recognition both by democratic leaders and the administration of the imperative necessity for such relief measures as progressives of both parties have been demanding since congress assembled. It is to be hoped that minor differences will be forgotten and that effective legislation of some kind enacted without delay."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today expressed his approval of the bill providing direct unemployment relief and a $2,000,000,000 fund for construction work would lead to pass at this session of congress.

"Introduction of the bill," he said, "shows that congress is finding out that we were right when we sought passage of the

New Contact Sought By Curtis Off Coast

NORFOLK, Va., May 11.—(AP)—Suddenly veering to a new phase of work, John Hughes Curtis, chief of Norfolk intermediaries in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, was tonight reported to be centering his efforts to renew contact with the kidnapers in the vicinity of Block Island, off the Rhode Island coast.

Curtis has not returned to Norfolk since Friday, when he suddenly shifted his activities from the sea to the air and departed from the Hampton Roads naval air station in an airplane. It could not be learned here whether the Block Island area is the same place to which he made numerous and mysterious flights earlier in the negotiations, now more than two months in progress.

the king proceeded through the streets led by a group of notables including Governor Iba Blackwood, Adjutant General H. C. Dozier, Representatives Fred H. Dominick, and Butler Hare, Mayor G. T. McGregor and Commander Harry K. Arthur, of the state American Legion.

On the floats, seven "cotton queens" representing Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, West Virginia, Texas and South Carolina, rode in splendor to the coronation grounds where "Miss Delta" placed on the head of Dr. E. W. Sikes, president of the Clemson College, and "King Cotton," a cotton headpiece.

The queens were honored at a gala cotton ball tonight.

MEMPHIS PAYS HOMAGE TO COTTON IN CARNIVAL
MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 11.—(AP)—A gaily decorated Memphis gave way to revelry today for the opening of the second annual cotton carnival, and King Cotton, "white gold of the delta," began a three-day rule over mirth and merrymaking.

Paul Hevers awaited their instructions to go clattering through the streets on speedy steeds to warn an expectant citizenry of the approach of King Cotton, his queen and their retinue.

In the royal party arriving by barge at the port of Memphis will be a reincarnated George Washington, who, the make-believers say, will have crossed the "Delaware" to capture Memphis and John King Cotton in starting the carnival which also marks Memphis' celebration of the Washington bicentennial.

Cottonman J. P. Norfleet and his come queen, Catharine Butler, and the other nobles will receive tributes from the cotton industry and obtain religious blessings before proceeding to city hall, where Mayor Watkins Overton, a great-grandson of one of the founders of Memphis, will turn over the keys to the city.

From then on the joys of carnival time will reign. Three days of dancing and parading will be climaxed Friday with a grand carnival parade led by the king and queen and a gigantic ball in the municipal auditorium.

Only one source can fill the vacuum of hungry cotton spinning mills in Lancashire, particularly with reopening of the Indian market for cotton goods, and that is cotton from the United States.

Russian cotton had gained a good foothold in the English market within the last year, but British consumers are frankly unconvinced that they can depend upon it as a permanent source of supply. They suggest that the requirements of the Russian population cannot always go unheeded.

Another element contributing to their uncertainty is the inability to obtain definite figures on Russian production. Trade leaders point out that they can get estimates almost to the pound on what will be produced five years from now, but are unable to learn with any degree of authenticity how much was produced last year or how much will be available in the coming year, if any.

Cotton spinners here understand that the whole of the soviet cotton production for 1932 will be acquired by the state for the use of the people, under the five-year plan. This would mean that Russian imports would have to be replaced and may account for the lack of new cotton.

According to soviet figures, the 1932-33 production will be equivalent to 2,325,000 bales of 475 pounds each, about 325,000 bales increase over 1931-32.

Nevertheless, upwards of 100 spinning mills in Lancashire have been sampled and are now consuming cotton of Russian origin.

Russian cotton consumed in January, this year, was 74,283 bales, 100 per cent increase over the July consumption. At the same time consumption of American cotton jumped from 498,000 to 600,000 bales.

Norman Pearce, general secretary of the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners' Association, told the Associated Press that, in view of these figures the menace of Russian cotton is not nearly so severe as many had thought. Nevertheless, he said, the subject is becoming one of the utmost importance in the cotton world.

Not much of the Russian cotton England buys is of the long-staple variety, figures indicate, although definite statistics are not available. This is assumed from the fact that Russian cotton averages nearly half a cent a pound below the average of all cotton imported. However, in 1930, the latest figures available, Russia sold England 2,808,500 bales of long-staple—of 114 English inches or over.

U. S. Cotton Outlook Brighter As Soviet Staple Fails Britain

BY EDWARD STANLEY.
MANCHESTER, England, May 11.—(AP)—Fresh supplies of Russian cotton have vanished from the English market, for the present at least. New season shipments are simply not on offer.

Only one source can fill the vacuum of hungry cotton spinning mills in Lancashire, particularly with reopening of the Indian market for cotton goods, and that is cotton from the United States.

Russian cotton had gained a good foothold in the English market within the last year, but British consumers are frankly unconvinced that they can depend upon it as a permanent source of supply. They suggest that the requirements of the Russian population cannot always go unheeded.

Another element contributing to their uncertainty is the inability to obtain definite figures on Russian production. Trade leaders point out that they can get estimates almost to the pound on what will be produced five years from now, but are unable to learn with any degree of authenticity how much was produced last year or how much will be available in the coming year, if any.

Cotton spinners here understand that the whole of the soviet cotton production for 1932 will be acquired by the state for the use of the people, under the five-year plan. This would mean that Russian imports would have to be replaced and may account for the lack of new cotton.

According to soviet figures, the 1932-33 production will be equivalent to 2,325,000 bales of 475 pounds each, about 325,000 bales increase over 1931-32.

Nevertheless, upwards of 100 spinning mills in Lancashire have been sampled and are now consuming cotton of Russian origin.

Russian cotton consumed in January, this year, was 74,283 bales, 100 per cent increase over the July consumption. At the same time consumption of American cotton jumped from 498,000 to 600,000 bales.

Norman Pearce, general secretary of the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners' Association, told the Associated Press that, in view of these figures the menace of Russian cotton is not nearly so severe as many had thought. Nevertheless, he said, the subject is becoming one of the utmost importance in the cotton world.

Not much of the Russian cotton England buys is of the long-staple variety, figures indicate, although definite statistics are not available. This is assumed from the fact that Russian cotton averages nearly half a cent a pound below the average of all cotton imported. However, in 1930, the latest figures available, Russia sold England 2,808,500 bales of long-staple—of 114 English inches or over.

ACCIDENT SERIES CLAIMS ONE LIFE, HURTS SEVERAL
WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Donald McLean, 28, army private from Fort du Pont, Delaware, was fatally hurt in an accident today which set in train a series of collisions and injuries.

McLean and a companion in uniform smashed their car into another automobile at a street intersection. McLean's head was driven through the windshield, his jugular vein and windpipe were severed. The other soldier drove on two blocks, piled McLean into a taxi and sped away while the cab took McLean, dying, to Emergency hospital.

A motor patrolman summoned to the scene, struck another automobile and suffered critical injuries. An ambulance sent from Walter Reed military hospital to rush McLean to the army plant for a blood transfusion, smashed into a taxi and was wrecked, injuring its crew.

McLean died within an hour. His companion remained missing.

RESULTS FOUND EVEN IN PARALYSIS TESTS
NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—(AP)—As many children recovered from infantile paralysis without serum as with it in the first big test of this remedy, the American Medical Association was informed Tuesday.

Instead of scrapping the possibilities of relief from serum, the report was given as opening a safe method of finding out more about the value of serum in this baffling disease.

The serum is made from the blood of human infantile paralysis convalescents or immunes and was widely used in last summer's epidemic. Today was the first time the results of the big test have been reported to the medical profession at large.

NEWS MEN ASK BAN ON SECRECY AT GENEVA
GENEVA, May 11.—(UP)—Upon the demands of newspapermen assigned to Geneva, the disarmament conference has decided to abandon "so far as possible" the recently increasing practice of secret meetings.

At a special meeting of the conference's general commission it was decided to hold public meetings in the future except under unusual conditions and except in connection with the work of drafting committees.

The demand of the newspapermen was presented by Clarence Streit, correspondent for The New York Times and president of the International Association of Journalists, accredited to the League.

Egan 'Alibi' Attacked In Slaying of Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—(AP)—Police Chief William J. Quinn has announced solution of the alleged murder of Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, awaited only the arrest of Verne Doran, ex-convict and chauffeur for Public Defender Frank J. Egan, and declared Egan has prepared for himself "a deliberately staged alibi."

The statement, the first open intimation of police suspicion directed against Egan in connection with Mrs. Hughes' death, brought a chorus of denials from Mrs. Egan and her husband's friends. Egan, suffering from a nervous breakdown and organic complications, lay in a hospital bed, visited only by his doctors and nurses, his attorney and Mrs. Egan.

Egan is a reputed beneficiary under terms of the will of Mrs. Hughes, who was wealthy.

WHEAT DISTRIBUTION CUTS DOLE DEMANDS

Red Cross Relief Work in Stricken Areas Nears Completion.

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP)—Free distribution of farm board wheat by the Red Cross has cut down appreciably the recent agitation for a government dole, William M. Baxter Jr., Red Cross executive, has said.

The effect has been particularly noticeable, Baxter said, in the mining area of Pennsylvania and in Oklahoma, where the drought last year resulted in riotous raids on food stores. Baxter added that the distribution of the 40,000,000 bushels allotted by congress for relief was now more than half complete.

Red Cross chapters throughout the country, Baxter said, had requisitioned 1,533,512 barrels of flour on affidavits that 1,928,937 families were being cared for by charitable agencies. One barrel per family of four for three months was the estimated need. Georgia received 47,046 barrels, Baxter said.

Millers who make the flour or crush the grain for feed also pay freight costs and are reimbursed in wheat out of the government allotment. Allowing 6.8 bushels per barrel for flour and 47 bushels per ton for feed, this means that 20,297,802 bushels of the 40,000,000 have been used.

CONDITION OF GIRL WHO TOOK POISON IS STILL SERIOUS

Miss Marie Housley, 17, of 112 Short street, who Tuesday took poison in a fit of despondency caused by destitution in her parents' home, Wednesday was reported to be still in a serious condition, with physicians unwilling to venture an opinion on the outcome of her act. The young woman was taken to Grady hospital, where she sobbed her story to attendants. Members of the police band, learning of the destitution of the family, contributed a supply of groceries, and the father was provided with work for a few days—the first employment he has been able to obtain in two years. A 15-year-old sister of the poisoned girl has been the sole support of the family, selling newspapers on downtown streets, it was said.

Miss Jeanette Baum, secretary-treasurer of the laundry, which was robbed of approximately $300 during the bandits' raid, passed Lanier on Marietta street late Tuesday afternoon. She summoned Patrolman John Crankshaw, informing him that Lanier was one of four men who came into the laundry's offices. Lanier was arrested and held for investigation. Moses Glenn, another young white man, who was arrested on a street car a few minutes after the robbery, still is being held on charges of suspicion of being one of the robbers.

Contract Is Awarded For Paving in Laurens

A contract for the construction of 10.5 miles of concrete paving on the Savannah highway in Laurens county was awarded Wednesday by the state highway board to the Dickson-Carroll Company, of Greenville, S. C. The bid was $187,120.67.

The board also awarded a contract for the reinforcement on the sides of the paved road between Athens and Watkinsville to the L. D. Law Construction Company, Gainesville, for $978.10.

Another contract for reinforcement of sides on the Carrolton-Villa Rica paved road is to be awarded later. When the bids were opened it was found that both the L. D. Law Construction Company and Tillman Brothers Company, of Statesboro, had tied for the low bid at $1,211.08. The board authorized the chairman to confer with the two contractors and award the contract later.

A large delegation from Chatham, Glynn and other counties along the Coastal highway appeared before the board asking that bridges on that road be widened. Board members expressed doubt of being able to act at present.

JUDGE EUGENE D. THOMAS.

Johnson, who presented a petition bearing the signatures of more than 600 members of the Fulton county bar, urging Thomas to make the race. He is unopposed thus far in the September 14 primary for another four-year term.

Johnson eulogized Thomas, telling him that his fearless and impartial rulings have won for him a place in the hearts and affections not only of the bar but of the people of the county. Johnson said Judge Thomas is honored and his judicial ability recognized by professional men and laymen alike.

"Your expression of confidence in my service is appreciated," Judge Thomas said in response to Johnson's appeal. "My work has been doubly pleasant in that I have been able to serve and that the members of the bar, together with the juries, have cooperated with me in a most pleasing manner. I appreciate the interest and confidence shown by my many friends and associates and hope they will support me for another term."

Later, in his chambers, Judge Thomas told newspapermen he had intended to announce later, but that the petition touched him and he decided to do so at once.

Judge Thomas was born July 13, 1881, in Douglas county, and was admitted to the bar in December, 1900. He served as chairman of the Fulton county democratic committee from 1906 to 1922 and was made chief judge of the municipal court of Atlanta January 1, 1914. He served in this position until January 1, 1922, when he was elected judge of the Fulton superior court. He is an ardent worker in the Masonic order, holding the high position of junior grand warden of the Grand Lodge of Georgia.

EARLY RELIEF ASKED FOR U. S. RAILROADS

Many Face Receivership If Aid Is Not Forthcoming,
Rayburn Declares.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Chairman Rayburn, of the house interstate commerce committee, predicted today before the rules committee that unless something further is done to aid them many railroads will be forced into receivership and then under federal ownership.

His bill to repeal the law requiring carriers to pay to the federal treasury one-half of their earnings over 5.34 per cent, the Texas democrat added, would do much to improve conditions. Under the law, Rayburn said, the interstate commerce commission claims railroads owe $261,000,000 to the treasury fund. Of that total, $13,000,000, including interest, now is in the fund.

My great fear is that those who advocate government ownership of railroads are going to face it much sooner than they want to unless something like this is done," he said.

The Texas was asking the rules committee to allow quick consideration of his bill, which also would put railroad holding companies under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission.

Rayburn said that with this $361,000,000 cloud hanging over them, railroads cannot recover.

HOME RULE PROGRAM DRAWS RASKOB'S FAVOR

BOSTON, May 11.—(AP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, has told Massachusetts democrats he advocated the home rule plan of liquor control.

He spoke at a bridge party under the auspices of the Massachusetts democratic victory campaign committee. Other democratic bridge parties throughout the state heard Raskob's address by radio.

Referring to present economic conditions, Raskob said he doubted if there was any one thing congress could do in the direction of restoring prosperity that would be more effective than to permit the production, transportation and sale of light wine and beer and to levy a tax thereon, based on Canadian rates.

GOTHAM BANKS PLAN INTEREST RATE CUT

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—The New York Clearing House has announced that its member banks, which include the leading Wall Street commercial banks, will cut the interest rates which they pay on deposits by one-half of one per cent, effective May 11.

This reduction, the first since rates were increased last October, was interpreted as a reflection of the credit expansion policy of the federal reserve system, which has been pumping credit into the open market by buying approximately $100,000,000 of United States government bonds weekly.

HARRIS' DAUGHTER AIDS SUCCESSOR IN SENATE OFFICE

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Miss Julia Wheeler Harris, daughter of the late Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, is now employed as typist and office assistant by her father's successor in the senate, Major John S. Cohen.

Prior to her father's death Miss Harris was prominently identified with the younger social set of Washington, and only recently graduated from Bryn Mawr College. She made her Washington debut while still a senior at Bryn Mawr, but she says she likes her work on Capitol Hill so well, she wonders, sometimes, why she did not assist her father while he was a member of the senate.

Like her distinguished grandfather, General "Fighting Joe" Wheeler, of Civil War fame, Miss Harris is aggressive and fired with a determination to succeed with any problem with which she is confronted. Having "majored" in political science and economics at Bryn Mawr, she finds that helping a senator is not so difficult as it seemed before she entered Major Cohen's office.

Miss Harris' mother is with her in Washington, where they live at the Meridian Mansions, an apartment house in the fashionable Northwest section.

BAPTIST W. M. U. ASKS SUPPORT IN CAMPAIGN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 11.—An appeal to southern Baptist women for full support in a campaign to increase membership in the Women's Missionary Union was sounded today by Mrs. W. J. Cox, of Memphis, president, in addressing the opening session of the organization's convention here.

The W. M. U. convention precedes the 77th annual southern Baptist convention opening Friday.

"Possibilities of increased membership," Mrs. Cox said, "offer hope for a quick and sure relief in our mission situation because it will mean added numbers of women, and young people praying for, thinking about and giving to the mission enterprise." This campaign was made a chief aim for 1932.

Cash contributions to women's missionary work during the past year totaled $2,197,270.98, Mrs. W. C. Lowndes, of Baltimore, treasurer, said in her annual report. She has been treasurer of the organization for 36 years. The report did not compare 1931 contributions with the 1930 total.

Texas led all other states with contributions of $420,501.29, while Virginia was in second place with $209,277.21 and North Carolina was third with $220,063.30.

Miss Kathleen Mallory, of Birmingham, corresponding secretary, announced in her annual report the W. M. U. had reached a membership of 651,690. This represented an increase for 1931 of 27,031. The enrollment in Florida was set at 19,948.

"Brightest of all the year's blessings," Miss Mallory said, "was the winning of 7,186 people as Christians." The increase in membership was described as "the next most valuable blessing."

LEAGUE SEEKS REINS OF CAROLINA PARTY

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 11.—(AP) The Farmers and Taxpayers League of South Carolina today named candidates for two offices in the state democratic party, indicating it will attempt to obtain control of the party at the state convention here next week.

S. W. Couch, of Saluda, was endorsed for chairman of the state democratic convention, and L. J. Brown, of Union, for permanent state democratic chairman.

The league also voted to support only candidates in the primaries this summer who are sympathetic with its aims.

COHEN RENEWS OLD FRIENDSHIP WITH PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Senator Cohen, of Georgia, democratic national committeeman for that state, today presented himself to President Hoover for the first time since officially donning his senatorial toga two weeks ago.

"Just a call of respect," Cohen told newspapermen in the lobby of the White House. "We are old friends. Both of us were fans together in the early days of the radio."

The new Georgia senator, publisher of The Atlanta Journal, who was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the death of Senator Harris, was introduced formally to the chief executive by Senator George, democrat, Georgia.

Cohen expressed the opinion that the president "looks well, although he has grown older in the 12 years since last I saw him, as who of us has not?"

ACCUSED OF MURDER, YOUTH KILLS SELF

WOOSTER, Ohio, May 11.—(AP)—The suicide of a 19-year-old youth shortly after he was implicated in a relative's confession of murder provided a startling climax early today to an investigation of the slaying of the relative's wife.

The accused youth, Harold Young, fired a shotgun charge into his head just as officers arrived at his home, near here, to arrest him. His death came less than an hour after Herbert Meeker, a Wayne county farmer, named Young as the actual slayer of Meeker's wife.

Sheriff John Stevens, of Holmes county, said Meeker also implicated himself.

Here goes the last "sacred cow" in cigarette advertising!

INHALING has long been an "untouchable".... a subject taboo in the tobacco trade.... a "sacred cow"! Why?... Because in every tobacco leaf—even the finest, the mildest—nature hides certain impurities which, when not removed, are unkind to delicate membranes!

And since, knowingly or unknowingly, we all inhale some part of the smoke from our cigarette—Lucky Strike developed that great scientific process which removes certain impurities. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

ROYALTY TO HONOR DOUMER AT RITES

Ceremonies at Notre Dame and Pantheon Will Precede Simple Burial.

PARIS, May 11.—(AP)—A king a president, an heir to an imperial throne and two royal princes will take part tomorrow in the funeral procession of the humbly-born Paul Doumer, assassinated president of France.

The funeral services will be held in Notre Dame cathedral, where Doumer was crowned. Then the body will be taken to the steps of the Pantheon, where Premier Andre Tardieu will eulogize the president. Prince Paul, of Yugoslavia, the duke of Aosta, of Italy, and the Prince of Wales arrived today to take part in the funeral. King Albert, of the Belgians, arrived just before midnight for tomorrow's ceremonies. The German government is sending a special ambassador.

The funeral procession will leave the Elysee palace at 8 a. m. In it will march war veterans, diplomats and Albert Lebrun, who succeeded Mr. Doumer as president.

After the religious service at Notre Dame, the body will be taken to the Pantheon. At the conclusion of the services there, the catafalque will remain on view for the rest of the day.

In the evening, burial will take place at the Doumer family vault at Vaugirard cemetery.

Dr. Paul Gorgulov, the president's assassin, was taken before a magistrate today for formal questioning about his personal history.

Mme. Gorgulov had collapsed and was unable to appear in court.

Dr. Gorgulov admitted under questioning that an entry in his diary about his kidnapping the Lindbergh baby was a fantasy, but said murder plots against President Van Hinderburg, of Germany; President T. G. Masaryk, of Czechoslovakia; the late Nicolai Lenin, idol of the soviets, and other soviet officials, were true.

He said he was prevented in carrying out these murders each time he tried them by some untoward developments. He said he was unable to get to Moscow to murder Lenin.

Dr. Gorgulov said he wanted to be condemned to death, but insisted he was no bandit and had never committed a crime before.

Negroes Fast and Pray For Murderer's Capture

GRENADA, Miss., May 11.—(AP) A negro congregation here is fasting in the hope that their prayers for the capture of a man who criminally assaulted and murdered an elderly white woman Saturday night will be answered.

All 75 members of the Church of God in Christ yesterday renounced food for three days so that the law could atone for Mrs. Minnie Barbee's ravishment and slaying.

Clarence Williams, a negro worker, is hunted. Citizens of Grenada, including some negroes, have contributed to a $1,000 reward fund for his capture and conviction.

GUBERNATORIAL RACE IN CENTER OF STAGE

Georgia's free-for-all gubernatorial race was enlivened Tuesday with the campaign forces of Judge J. Rendell Terrell organizing for action, the apparent probability that John N. Holder would get in the race and the definite announcement that Judge Alvan H. Freeman, of Newnan, would not make the race.

There was one new entry in the race for commissioner of agriculture, Judge B. F. Walker, of Wrens.

Wide interest was manifested in legislative circles Wednesday when it was learned that Brick S. Miller, of Columbus, was being urged to run for the general assembly from Muscogee county, and that Mr. Miller was giving serious consideration to the requests of his friends.

Mr. Miller is a former representative and former senator from Muscogee and for many years was one of the outstanding members of the assembly. He is a former trustee of the University of Georgia and is widely known over the state for his interest in public affairs.

An editorial written by Hugh Rowe, in the Athens Banner-Herald, proposed Miller as a member of the general assembly from Muscogee county this time. Willis Battle, who was a member of the Muscogee delegation for three sessions, is a candidate for solicitor-general in his circuit.

Athens Editorial.

The Banner-Herald editorial said: "Brick S. Miller, of Columbus, prominent and outstanding citizen of this state, is being urged to enter the race for the legislature from Muscogee county. Mr. Miller has represented that county for several terms in the general assembly, and for several terms he represented the senatorial district in which is located Muscogee county. During his long and useful services in both houses of the legislature, he became a recognized leader and rendered a service to this state of the highest standard of excellence. His most notable achievements which have left a record in the archives of the legislative halls of Georgia was the support of the interests of the educational and school systems of this state. It was through his untiring efforts and unceasing activities that appropriations were brought through both houses in 1906, enabling the common schools and the institutions of higher learning to render a service to the children and young men and young women of this state that has been lasting and beneficial to the past and present generations."

"Mr. Miller is well known to the people of Athens; he enjoys the friendship and admiration of not only those associated and connected with the higher educational institutions located here, but his acquaintance reaches so practically every home in this city where he has many warm friends. His connection with the educational institutions located in Athens enabled him to form a friendship among our people that is next in degree to citizenship. In fact, he occupied an unique and unusual official position with the University of Georgia, the Georgia State College of Agriculture and the Georgia State Teachers College, serving for years, and during the same period of time as trustee of the three institutions."

"If the people of Muscogee county can persuade him to serve them in the legislature, they will have a representative of whom the people of any county in the state would be proud to call their own."

Grid Stars Visit Talmadge.

Eugene Talmadge, candidate for governor, received a delegation of old Georgia football stars who were students at the University of Georgia where he was president of the athletic association. They were Herman DeLapierre, 09 captain; Vason McWhorter, 06, and Charley Thompson, 19. In the delegation also was Arthur L. Hardy, who was Demosthenian anniversary when Talmadge was Phi Kappa anniversary.

Another probable entry into the gubernatorial race, according to the gossip, is State Senator Charles H. Neider, of Reynolds. Neider was one of the outstanding members of the 1931 senate and was one of the legislative leaders.

ANTI-DRYS WIN IN OHIO PRIMARIES

Delegates of Smith and Baker Badly Beaten by Governor White.

By the Associated Press.

Anti-prohibition victories in Ohio shared interest yesterday with Governor George White's capture of that state's entire 52 votes in the democratic national convention and the overwhelming defeat of Governor William H. Murray by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the West Virginia primary.

Nearly complete returns made it virtually certain that dry forces had been defeated by David S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, assistant secretary of the navy, seeking the republican gubernatorial nomination, and by Attorney-General Gilbert Bettman, running for the republican senatorial nomination. Ingalls and Bettman and several congressional winners were opposed by the Anti-Saloon League.

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, had this to say: "Ohio used to be dry as a mummy. Now she is wet as Lake Erie. If the republicans buyfoot in their platform in June, Ohio will go democratic in November from president down to dog catcher. Ohio is wet."

Dry "indifference." R. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio League, conceded the primary election to candidates it rated "unsatisfactory," but blamed their victory on "indifference" on the part of the voters.

"The trend," he said, "is not due to the fact that Ohio wants to stop itself with liquor, but shows that the majority of those who voted have the fallacious notion that this state can get rid of the lawless element by ushering in a wet regime which has no constructive program to offer."

Meanwhile, Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, reiterated before an Atlantic City church conference that "we will not stand for wet plank in party platforms."

"We will not stand for wet candidates," he said, "and if such things happen there will be a united front of prohibitionists to see that they are beaten."

Like Governor White, President Hoover swept over his slight opposition to win all 55 delegates from Ohio, while Roosevelt topped West Virginia's 13, while Roosevelt topped the delegate-picking in those two states brought the total democratic delegates chosen far to 788.

There will be 1,154 full-vote delegates in the democratic convention, with 770, or two-thirds, required to nominate.

Lineup of Candidates. The lineup last night stood: Roosevelt, instructed, pledged and claimed x361

Preference in doubt x168

Total 788
X of Roosevelt claimed 5 of 55 Smith forces dispute 5 of 55 Roosevelt's 6 and 16 from Porto Rico, xincludes 16 from Pennsylvania, over which Roosevelt and Smith managers make overlapping claims.

The republicans, with 1,154 full-vote delegates and 578, or a majority, require to nominate. He selected 1942 last night, divided as follows:

Hoover, instructed, pledged and claimed x919
Norris, pledged 11
Preference in doubt x12

Total 942
X Joseph I. France, of Maryland, disputes 172 of these totals, claiming they are his by moral if not legal right, since he alone has the preference vote in North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Illinois, West Virginia and Nebraska.

NEARLY 700 VOTES CLAIMED FOR NEW YORK GOVERNOR NEW YORK, May 11.—(P)—Even without any of the Illinois bloc, James A. Farley, Roosevelt field marshal, claims nearly 700 votes on the first ballot, or almost enough for nomination.

Renewed optimism was in evidence at the New York governor's headquarters today, based on the acquisition of 28 more convention votes from West Virginia, Arizona and Wyoming.

It also was pointed out that the six delegates Alfred E. Smith had hoped to win in Ohio had been defeated.

The optimistic claims of the Roosevelt leaders even extended to Massachusetts, which gave Smith an overwhelming victory in his race for the state's 30 votes.

The Roosevelt men said they had received assurances that the Bay State delegation would switch first to Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, and eventually to the New York governor.

The last vestige of opposition to support of Roosevelt in Montana, Farley said, had vanished and he expressed an assurance the state's eight votes, to be picked at a convention May 17, would be in Roosevelt's column.

He also said he was sure of the 20 votes from Kansas, which will hold its convention May 16.

FIVE ALASKAN DELEGATES INSTRUCTED FOR ROOSEVELT JUNEAU, Alaska, May 11.—(P)—Outgoing republicans for the first time since 1918, Alaska democrats have elected five national convention delegates instructed to vote for the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A sixth contest remained to be settled between a Roosevelt backer and un-instructed candidates.

With only about 1,200 more votes to be received from isolated settlements, the democrats polled 4,920 votes to 4,173 for the republicans.

George G. Grigsby, of Ketchikan, democratic delegate to congress, being President Wilson's term, was defeated for nomination to that position this year by Anthony J. Dimond, Valdez attorney.

Dimond will oppose the veteran republican delegate, James Wickham, in the fall election. Wickham, who has served seven terms, was unopposed for the republican nomination.

The big democratic vote was attributed to dissatisfaction among Indians, who heretofore voted almost solidly republican, and the recent organization of a democratic-controlled congress in Washington. The state has no vote in congress and democrats contended their choice will have a better chance to secure hearings.

The republicans' two national delegates, unopposed in the primary, will vote for President Hoover's re-nomination.

MONTANA DELEGATION SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT HELENA, Mont., May 11.—(P)—Sufficient strength to assure instruction of Montana's delegation to the national democratic convention for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt was claimed today by Dr. T. J. B. Stanley after a compilation of returns from yesterday's county meetings.

Shanley, state chairman of the Roosevelt organization, said he had been advised 12 counties voted to seek a delegation pledged to the New York governor. The state convention will choose 16 delegates each with half a vote.

Republican delegates generally were uninstructed. One republican and two democratic counties approved resolutions urging repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"Your Uncle Dudley"—and yours and yours will seem like a real character instead of the subject of slang at the Atlanta Woman's Club Saturday when Girls' High school seniors present the play by that name. Two performances will be given, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8:30 o'clock at night.

The plot is described as complicated and hilarious and involves a trip to Europe and a final untangling of affairs of love.

Among those in the cast are Mary Large, the title role; Emily Greenblatt, Allene Greenblatt, Mildred Adams, Blanche Holbrook, Marie Eisman, Barbara Price and Mabel Hall.

$300,000,000 CUT IN U. S. EXPENSES IS SOLO'S GOAL

no clues to its views, as it spent the day getting started. Chairman Jones said no announcements of decisions were intended until the job was completed.

The members of the committee with Jones at the White House were: Bingham, Connecticut, and Dickinson, Iowa, republicans; McKellar, Tennessee; Bratton, New Mexico, and Byrnes, South Carolina, democrats.

Chairman McDuffie, of the house economy committee, spent the day with the senate group.

Opponents of the four tariff items in the revenue bill will present a minority report on the measure. Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, notified the senate today he would submit the minority report. He consulted late today with Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking democrat, who is confined at home with a lame leg, on the language of the report.

The big fight of the tax bill will come on the four principal import duties—oil, coal, copper and lumber—when the lines due to fall to pieces in the clash.

Democrats, for the most part, are in opposition. Republicans, for the most part, favor the duties.

COLUMNIST CITES STATE PRECEDENT

Georgia does with him will be a matter of paramount importance.

It is interesting to recall a bit of forgotten history. Mr. Crisp's father, the late Speaker Crisp, was rewarded by Georgia by promotion to the senate. He was nominated at a primary, which he himself proposed but died a few days before the election by the legislature. If Mr. Crisp had senatorial ambitions, he would be but natural in the circumstances.

Georgia Set Promotion Precedent.

Digging into the dusty archives of congress Mr. Brown finds that it was the state of Georgia that set one of the original precedents of elevating house members to the upper chamber after meritorious service—a precedent, he remarks, that has been adhered to by the Empire State of the South through almost every generation.

Recalling the number of Georgians throughout the years who have been elected to the senate after an initial service in the lower house, the Herald columnist writes:

"Generally brilliant service in the house has been the prelude to a senatorial career. This has been especially true with respect of the south. It is in part the basis for the belief that the brilliant service rendered to his country and his party in the house of representatives during the present stormy session will be recognized by Georgia in the promotion of Charles R. Crisp, who has been a member of the house since 1913.

"Georgia tradition would point to this promotion for Crisp, who has become the outstanding Georgian in congress since the passing of Senators Bacon and Clay, both of whom were men of first rank. It is a curious fact that a man sometimes serves 20 years in congress without making a national reputation. It is one of the curses of the overlarge membership of the body. In fact, it is so easy for political talent of a high order to be overlooked.

When Baldwin Became Senator.

"If Georgia sends Crisp to the senate, she can go back to the first congress under the present constitution for a precedent, and her history shows that the precedent has been adhered to through almost every generation.

When James Madison, who, like Madison, had won his spurs in the continental congress. When Madison went back to Virginia, just prior to becoming secretary of state, Baldwin stayed on in the house more term and then was advanced to the senate in the sixth congress in 1799.

"James Jackson, of Georgia, a representative in congress in the first congress, was defeated for the second congress, and then was elected to the senate, taking his seat in the third congress in 1793. So here is historic background in plenty that favors the promotion of Charles R. Crisp.

"Great names of Georgians have blazed in the house before Mr. John Forsyth, secretary of state in the cabinets of both Jackson and Van Buren, was first a representative and then a senator. In fact, when he had left the senate to become minister to Spain, upon the completion of that assignment, he again became a representative, and once more was promoted to the senate. He is a striking example of what Justin McCarthy would call the value of service.

Cobb, Toombs, Calhoun, "Promoted."

"Sustaining the Georgia tradition, Thomas W. Cobb was both representative and senator, and so also was Robert Toombs. Walter T. Colquitt and his son, Alfred H. Colquitt, were both of them first members of the house and later of the senate. Thus Georgia adhered to the policy of training her senators by first sending them to the house of representatives.

"Other states, of course, have done the same, especially so in the old days when there was more of senatorial splendor about the senate than there is today."

MEANS IS FREED ON $50,000 BOND

ful wife toward their handsome suburban residence. His most emphatic declaration was:

"I'm going home."

He insisted upon Friday for arraignment under the indictments returned yesterday. He had spent six days in jail following his arrest after secret investigation of complaints by Mrs. McLean, estranged wife of the Washington Post's publisher, that he appropriated the money she paid him to bring back the kidnapped Lindbergh baby.

Freedom came after much conferring between lawyers and the judge—and after Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, had disclosed in an interview that it was "a fake warehouse receipt for 20 trucks of alleged soviet documents."

Means, alias "Red Fish," two years ago, on a wild goose chase to Baltimore in quest of material for the famous house investigation of communist activities, had been arrested.

Communist activities figured in the other spectacular disclosure while Means was in jail. It was said here by a federal officer that he had been interviewed in an interview that it was "a fake warehouse receipt for 20 trucks of alleged soviet documents."

Means is alleged to have received at least $100,000 from Mrs. Finley Shepard, the former Helen Gould, of New York, on a promise to protect her fortune and daughter from purported red threats.

On all these subjects the man who was once a government investigator and later a federal prisoner under conviction for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and to bribe a federal officer had nothing to say today. He merely announced:

"Any statement I make, I'll make in writing—so that there will be no doubt about what I say. Any denial I make I'll make in writing."

Later Means in thundering tones denounced his accusers, denied their allegations, and insisted that Mrs. McLean "don't have a leg to stand on."

He maintained he never was employed by Mrs. Shepard. Though he declined to answer whether he talked with her about communist activities, or whether he was employed in anti-communist drives in which she might have been interested, he emphasized he "never took a dollar from her."

The big fellow received the reporter in his home. He was furious because justice department agents, he said, had torn up his safe during their search of his house without asking him for the combination.

Reiterating that Mrs. McLean sought him and hired him to "see whether I could recover Charles Lindbergh Jr.," Means said he agreed to this employment last March 4.

MRS. SHEPARD'S HOUSEHOLD SILENT ON MEANS CASE

NEW YORK, May 11.—(P)—The household of the late Jay Gould, who is widely known for his patriotic and philanthropic activities, was silent regarding a report that the late Jay Gould was scrutinizing charges he had been mulcted of large sums by Gaston B. Means.

At Tarrytown a secretary said she was absent. One source said she was at her Roxbury (N. Y.) home, but she could not be reached there.

LIBERALIZED DIVORCE CODE Proposed to Methodists

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 11. (P)—Further liberalization of the Methodist Episcopal church's regulation on divorce was recommended today to the quadrennial conference.

The proposed changes, as presented by a subcommittee to the committee on the state of the church, suggested that the church recognize as valid grounds for divorce "adultery or other conditions, which the church deems to be grounds for physical or mental torture or physical, mental or moral injury."

From Methodism's foundation in 1784 until 1928, the church recognized only adultery as grounds for divorce. In 1928, the discipline was changed to make grounds for divorce valid for "adultery or its moral equivalent."

A fight against further liberalization was forecast when the text of the recommended changes became known.

The committee deferred action on the changes today, but detailed the question for discussion Friday.

The committee took action, however, on a recommendation that the general conference support the effort to have uniform marriage and divorce laws enacted throughout the country.

Along with the proposed liberalization of divorce grounds, the subcommittee also proposed that the church eliminate from its discipline the statement:

"We recognize as lawful a divorce granted by the state."

The suggested deletion was explained as an unwillingness to acknowledge divorces granted by "divorce mills" or for causes other than those the church recognizes.

The divorce liberalization move came at the end of a crowded day in which the conference ratified a new retirement policy for its bishops, and Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Church, South, sounded a warning that the south would band anew against any wet candidate or platform plank in the coming presidential campaign.

In the committee on episcopacy, the area elimination move continued under debate with the number of episcopates considered raised from five to seven. It was learned that abolition of the Helena, Mont., area has virtually been decided upon.

The seven area eliminations under discussion now are: Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Detroit, Buffalo, Helena, Chattanooga and Covington, Ky.

Many observers, however, expressed the opinion not more than two episcopates would be abolished.

The possibility of elimination of the Helena area precipitated speculation as to where Bishop Wallace E. Brown, of that episcopate, would be assigned. His name was linked with the Chattanooga bishopric, which, if not eliminated, may be vacant, as its present bishop, H. Lester Smith, is expected to be assigned to Cincinnati.

It was learned also that Bishop Smith, who was a minister in Detroit for eight years before his elevation to the episcopate, would be acceptable to that area.

Planning Home IMPROVEMENTS

What a world of difference paint and repairs can make! But when it comes to adding comfort to your home, no single investment will yield such abundant returns as the installation of a Moncrief Furnace. It has been the standard of the South for 34 years, and every architect, contractor, builder and realtor knows that its installation will add many hundreds of dollars to the actual cash value of your home.

Your old furnace may have been the finest the market afforded when it was new, but today it can no more stand comparison with the 1932 model Moncrief than an old 1925 model automobile can compare with the latest model. An old furnace, like an old auto, costs excessively in repairs and fuel and if it leaks gas or smoke into your home it adds labor and cost to your cleaning and redecorating.

Let this be a banner year. Make all necessary repairs, and in addition, have a new Moncrief installed. A small deposit is enough. Pay the balance as you enjoy its comfort, economy and convenience. Be prepared when winter comes to live in the friendly warmth of its healthful heat.

A great furnace, the Moncrief—the best your money can buy. One of our engineers will be glad to explain its advantages. No obligation. Phone today.

Hospitals Hold 'Open House' Today Rains Pass Over, Fair Skies Today

In Honor of Florence Nightingale Fair Skies Today

In commemoration of the birth of the world's most famous nurse, Florence Nightingale, Atlanta hospitals today will join with infirmaries all over the United States in observance of "Hospital Day," with visitors being especially invited to visit and inspect the various sanitariums in this city.

While a majority of the hospitals here will celebrate the day simply by welcoming the public to "open house" inspections, Emory University hospital has arranged a program that should prove "highly interesting" to visitors, according to R. H. Hudgens, assistant superintendent. The hospital will be open in the afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock for all visitors and an special effort will be made to show each visitor how a modern hospital is operated.

Attendees calling at Emory hospital between those hours will be taken to a model ward and a model private room floor, and will be shown through the operating room, where a dummy operation will be completely set up, and also will be allowed to visit the obstetrical department, the large kitchen, laundry and laboratory. At the conclusion of the tour of inspection

The tent of blue that men call the sky will be fair today, according to C. F. von Hermann, local forecaster of the elements. The temperature will surge upward from 53 degrees, reaching a high of approximately 73 degrees. Wednesday the temperature ranged from 53 to 68 degrees.

All visitors will be served tea at the nurses' home, adjacent to the hospital on Clifton road. Other hospitals which will generally follow the Emory idea are Georgia Baptist, from 2 to 4 o'clock; Grady, from 10 to 11 a. m., and 2 to 4 p. m.; St. Joseph's Infirmary, 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Crawford W. Long, 1 to 5 p. m.; Piedmont, 2 to 6, and Scottish Rite, 2 to 5.

COCA-COLA BOTTLERS VICTOR IN $25,000 SUIT

A verdict for the Atlanta Coca-Cola Bottling Company was returned Wednesday by a jury in city court after hearing evidence in the suit for $25,000 instituted by Mrs. H. G. Ray. The contention of the plaintiff was that her health had been impaired through drinking a bottle of Coca-Cola which she alleged contained broken particles of glass. The bottling company denied that it had put out a bottle of Coca-Cola containing broken particles of glass and further asserted that its system rendered it impossible for any such broken glass particles to remain in the bottle when filled and capped.

The jury was out for 45 minutes before returning its verdict in favor of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company before Judge Hugh M. Dorsey. The law firm of Harold Hirsch and Marion Smith represented the bottling company.

Reviewing the Shows

"Doomed Battalion"

Dixie Premiere Today
The southern premiere of the "Doomed Battalion" will take place tonight at 7:45 at the Capitol theater, at regular admission prices. The Universal production had its world premiere in Washington, D. C., last week at $2 a ticket.
"The Doomed Battalion" is said to be a greater production than "All Quiet on the Western Front."
"Panama Flo," the current attraction, will have its final performance at 4 o'clock today. The theater will be closed until the premiere of "The Doomed Battalion," at 7:45.
The cast of "Doomed Battalion" is headed by the new find, Tala Birell, Louis Trenker and Victor Varconi. It is said to be one of the most spectacular productions ever made and presents a side of the war that has never before been filmed.

Record Xmas Card

For "Wiser Sex" Star
Claudette Colbert, screenland's "most unscandalized" beauty, who is now appearing at Keith's Georgia in "The Wiser Sex," received at the Paramount studio last Christmas a card some 10 feet in length.
The unusual card, expressing the appreciation of a group of Cincinnati admirers for a Santa Claus who was thoughtful enough to put Claudette in their "moving stockings" came in a large envelope, colorfully lined, sealed, and bearing a large two-cent stamp properly cancelled.
Others in the cast of "The Wiser Sex" are Lilyan Tashman, William Boyd and Melynn Douglas.

Line at "Grand Hotel"

Box Office Every Day
Patrons of Loew's Grand theater this week, during the round show run of "Grand Hotel," will find it advisable not to defer purchase of their tickets until time for the performance. There has been a line at the box office every day this week, and, for this reason, some have been unavoidably delayed in entering the theater until after the start of the picture.
"Grand Hotel" is one of the greatest of screen productions, fully worthy of its presentation under round show conditions. The story by Vicki Baum was one of the most widely-read novels of the year, its success as a stage play was tremendous and now, as a picture, it is achieving even greater fame. The cast which portrays the striking roles in this film is probably the greatest ever gathered together for one screen production. It includes Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Lionel Barrymore, John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Jean Harlow and many other great players.

Two performances are given daily, 2:30 and 8:30. All seats in the house are reserved.
CONGRESS HEARS BITTER CHARGES ON BANKING BILL
which resulted in heavy gold withdrawals from the United States. The department of justice issued a statement saying there was nothing in its files to warrant or support Glass' charge that an opinion prepared by Frederick W. Lehmann, solicitor-general under President Taft, had been suppressed. It said the document, strongly questioning the legality of banking affiliates, was an interdepartmental communication, never intended for publication. Glass later insisted the opinion had been "suppressed."
Palmer Denies.
A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney-general under President Wilson, late in the day issued a statement denying inferences that he had suppressed the opinion. He said it had appeared in the files of the department before he took office and that all he ever saw of it was a photographic copy unsigned by him.
Glass' charge of banking interests buying congressmen was originally made yesterday. He said they were Chicago bankers, the Loop district. Representative Britton, who comes from a Chicago district, seized upon the assertion today with a statement that it was a "damnable lie."
"This impugns the honesty and purpose of every member of this house," he said. He didn't believe Glass had "lied" deliberately and noted that Glass today limited the accusation to one house member.
He said he didn't believe Glass had referred to a man now dead.
"I resent the implication of the gentleman from Texas to impugn the character of the late Martin B. Madden as to any implication impugning my reputation," Britton replied. He concluded by shouting: "Damn lie."
Later Britton took the floor and said:
"I want to inform what Mr. Britton said about Martin B. Madden. I don't think there was enough money in the world to influence Martin B. Madden."
Off the floor it was pointed out by members of congress that Glass had given no indication that he referred to Madden and that the latter was even a member of the banking committee which considered the McFadden bill.
Informed of the house developments, Glass said a note he had found evidence several years ago of a member of the house being hired to oppose the branch banking provisions of the McFadden bill. The evidence was suppressed, he said, because of the state of the congressman's health. He offered to prove his charge if anyone would take responsibility for making the evidence public.
At the center of all the turmoil was Glass' bill designed to strengthen the country's banking system and prevent use of federal reserve facilities for stock market speculation.
An assertion by Kean, in opposing the measure, that it was written at the suggestion of Willis was hotly denied by Glass, chairman of the subcommittee.
Prefacing his remarks with the statement that he meant no reflection

Tech Journalistic Leaders Honored at Annual Banquet

This year's and next year's editors of the student publications at Georgia Tech present at the annual publications' banquet given by the student council at the Atlanta Athletic Club Wednesday night. The 1933 editors are shown at the top (left to right), Sanders Camp, Yellow Jacket; Henry Burks, Blue Print; and Willard Turnbull, Tech-nique. The editors for 1932 are pictured at the bottom (left to right), J. E. Fain, Technique; A. G. Wells, Blue Print; and W. A. Horne, Yellow Jacket. Staff photos by Bill Mason.

The annual publications banquet given by the Georgia Tech student council to staff members of the three Tech publications—the Blue Print, the Yellow Jacket, and the Tech-nique—was held at the Atlanta Athletic Club Wednesday night.
A. Horne, Yellow Jacket, the business manager of the Yellow Jacket, presided at the banquet. He was elected to Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary society. Henry Burks, Willard Turnbull, George Cornell, William Owens, Ivan Allen Jr., Charles Wagner, Harry Weiler, Harold Gegenheimer, George Worland, Edward Foxhall, and Jack Glenn, Professor Fred Wenn were elected faculty member advisors by the society.
Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalistic fraternity, added the following members: Jesse Davis, Clarence Hale, Ray James, William Maynard, Schuler McKinney, William Owens, James Selser, Hugh Stubbs, Fred Storer and William Whitaker. Entertainment for the banquet was provided by members of Fanchon & Marco's "La Plaza" idea, playing at the Fox theater this week.

on any member of the senate, Kean asserted Willis obtained confidential information from the office of the controller of the currency which was available to no senator but Glass.
"He received the information," said Kean, referring to Willis, "and was in daily communication with Paris papers."
While the senate listened closely, Kean read translations of information which he said Willis had cabled to French newspapers in recent months.
"The result of these dispatches," he said, "has been to make decisions of foreign money in the United States withdraw their funds and to so frighten investors that they have sold back securities held in the United States."
When word of the house developments reached Glass he arose in the senate and said the facts on which he based his statement were learned by a senate investigating committee at the time.
"We had the testimony of this man's family physician that any revelation of that nature would endanger his life," Glass said, "and therefore the subcommittee decided not to pursue the investigation any further."
Since Died.
"That congressman has since died and perhaps I should not have made the reference I did to it."
"If anyone in this or the other branch of congress is eager to make a revelation of the facts I will make the documentary evidence and if any body wants to take the responsibility for revealing it, I will agree."
When informed that the justice department statement, Glass stuck to his assertion and said the opinion was never acted upon nor given publication of any description although it dealt with a matter of "tremendous importance" and had been requested by President Taft. He remarked that he had not charged it was suppressed by any particular public official.
Palmer said it was clear that "if there was any suppression of the opinion by anybody, it was not either by Attorney-General McReynolds or myself, for the former delivered to the secretary of the treasury and I returned to the controller of the currency the only paper bearing on the opinion which was to be found in the department of justice and that was merely a photostatic copy of an unsigned memorandum."
He said it appeared from phases of the case that Lehmann's original opinion must have been delivered to the president (William Howard Taft) since he apparently had expressed a desire for a "fuller discussion" of the questions involved in it.

WALKER AGAIN PUT IN PROBE SPOTLIGHT

Mayor Figures in Testimony Concerning Missing Financial Agent.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker came under the spotlight of the Hofstadter investigation again today in testimony centering around his long-missing financial agent, Russell T. Sherwood.

Park A. Rowley, president of the Manhattan Company, testified Sherwood was hired as a "new account" by the Bank of Manhattan Company at an annual salary of $10,000, partially on the strength of his acquaintance with the mayor and other public officials.
Sherwood, sought by the Hofstadter committee as the link with Mayor Walker's financial affairs, was not supposed to devote all his time to his position, according to the testimony.
Without specifically asking the witness whether Sherwood's unfinished business was with the mayor, Counsel Samuel Seabury endeavored to show in his questioning that Sherwood was employed primarily to cultivate agreeable relations with his former employer.
State Senator John A. Hastings, who caused a furor at yesterday's hearing by calling Mr. Seabury a "coward" and a "political blackmailer," came in for his daily discomfiture. He asserted that a $7,500 loan granted to the senator by the Bank of Manhattan in 1929 had never been repaid, and to all intents and purposes had been charged to "profit and loss."

Mrs. W. H. Simmons Says Thor's Vitamin 'Worth World' to Her

"If Thor's Vitamin Compound had not done any more than return my strength like it has it would be worth all the world to me; but it has completely overcome a bad acid condition of my stomach and freed my system of toxic poisons, too."

"When I had much walking to do, I had to stop and rest every three or four blocks. I was so weak. My appetite was good, but what I ate did not seem to do me any good or give me any strength. Whether this was indigestion or not, I don't know, but my stomach was very acid, and my whole system seemed full of toxic poisons."

"I had tried a lot of medicines without much benefit, but Thor's Vitamin Compound just seemed to go to the source of my troubles and drive me right out. My strength has increased so much I can walk for an hour without being tired. My food does me lots of good and the toxic poisons have disappeared."

"This new yeast, iron and copper treatment deserves every word of praise people are giving it, and anyone who tries it will realize that those who are telling about its benefits are doing them a good turn."

The above statement was made by Mrs. W. H. Simmons, highly respected resident of 265, 1st St. N. W. Mrs. Simmons is loved by neighbors and friends alike for her sterling character and unflinching kindness.
Thor's Vitamin Compound, the new scientific treatment of yeast vitamin iron and copper, promotes an increase in the vital, strength-giving red corpuscles of the blood, corrects digestive disturbances, assists in eliminating impurities from the system by toning and strengthening the nervous system by nature's own method of improved circulation and increased metabolism. It is ideal as a spring tonic. To be sure you obtain the genuine yeast, iron, and copper treatment insist on it by name: Thor's Vitamin Compound. Only fifty cents at all drug stores.—(adv.)

Poet Edwin Robinson Far Superior To Whitman, Cestre Tells Audience

Walt Whitman, considered by many eminent critics to be the foremost American poet, is far from that in the opinion of Dr. Charles Cestre, professor of American literature and civilization at the Sorbonne, Paris, who delivered a lecture on "Edwin Robinson" at the Glenn Memorial church Wednesday night. In fact, Dr. Cestre, in tearing the feet of clay from beneath Whitman, left the writer of "Leaves of Grass" in a precarious position, classifying him as a representative of the lesser American school of poetry, and Robinson as of the greater school.

Edwin Robinson Robinson, born in the state of Maine, of Puritan parents, is the greatest poet of the American and English language, Dr. Cestre told his attentive audience.
Robinson, Dr. Cestre said, in his first poems, which were written in the latter part of the nineteenth century, possessed a romantic tendency. This inclination was soon overcome, the lecturer related, by a desire on the part of the poet to decompose things to their elements—thus arriving at an intellectual understanding of the inner feeling of man. Robinson, as age grew on him, became more realistic in his works. He had an intense desire to see things as they were, not to create an impression of them as they should be, the speaker said.
Robinson may be compared to Browning, in Dr. Cestre's opinion, with Robinson the greater of the two. Browning dealt with abstract subjects, applying psychological analysis to them; on the other hand Robinson painted pictures of every-day life with lyrical beauty in the language used. He asserted, listing the two poets, the lecturer mentioned the similarity between the works of Keats and Schopenhauer; and the poems of Bryant and Wordsworth.
Robinson had a knack of withdrawing into himself, the lecturer told the

with Castoria's gentle regulation "The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste. But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged. This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Chas. H. Fletcher.

CASTORIA
CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings. For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always get genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A woman with bent shoulders and gray hair passed by the window, not an old woman in years but a woman spent. "Isn't she pathetic?" asked my companion. "You have used the wrong word," I replied. "She is magnificent." The contour of her face is ugly. Her walk is awkward. Her hands are knobby and gnarled. Her feet are broad and flat. Her clothes are unattractive. Measured by any standard of physical beauty she is a total failure. No man would ever look at her a second time. No thoughtful person would ever pass her without a pang of pity. With all of her ugliness there is about her that indefinable atmosphere of peace and serenity that comes with the quiet acceptance of life's role.

This is her story: Since she was a child she has known nothing but unselfish devotion to a widowed mother, an invalid brother, and a house full of boarders, the duties of gardening, the pleasure of rest, and the satisfaction of making thin ends meet. I doubt if she has ever had a vacation. I know she has never had a pleasure trip nor has she expected such a luxurious life as even an automobile, and when she goes she walks or rides on the street car.

To make her picture stand out clearly on the great canvas the master artist has painted a purple background. Her humble home is in the very shadow of a great house, a house where there is everything men count important aids to happiness. There are costly furnishings, servants in abundance, automobiles, ease, luxury and overlapping of thick ends. For the in-mated this home is a vacation and a laudable trip far away places. Pleasure is the rule of life and work the exception. The chase after happiness is the game of life and the great house is only the home base to be topped between chases.

In which house would you rather live? CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Culbertson on Contract

When Not To Finesse.

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Hand No. 5 in the World Bridge Olympic is an example of the principle of the Forcing Takeout in Contract bidding. This Forcing Takeout is the most important bid, judged from the standpoint of games or Slams, that can be made, and sometimes it has been described as the backbone of the Approach-Forcing System. A Forcing Takeout should not be made on hands containing less than adequate strength, and the experience of years has demonstrated that, in order to justify a Forcing Takeout of an Opening bid of one, the Responding "Hand" should hold more than 3 honor-tricks.

The world-wide contest, conducted by the National Bridge Association, and participated in by players all around the world, had as its leading hands, but this hand, in addition to the exemplification of a principle of bidding, gave to the Declarer, North, an opportunity to test his knowledge of correct playing principles. The hand and bidding were:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

2NT(2) Pass 3♣(3) Pass
4♣(4) Pass 6♣(5) Pass

1—North holds more than 4 honor-tricks. Of course, his Forcing Takeout is absolutely sound.

2—South's hand contains 1-2 honor-trick more than shown by his Opening bid, but he lacks adequate support for partner's Takeout, and his club suit is not rebiddable. He, therefore, has no other bid than the negative response to the Forcing Takeout.

3—North shows rebid strength in the heart suit.

4—South now has adequate support, as partner is strong enough to rebid the suit.

5—With a long and almost solid trump suit, North's Slam bid is fully justified.

In order that the play of the hand might be based upon sound reasoning, the cards were permitted to lead his fourth best diamond, and, with this information, North was expected to make six hearts. The play of the hand required him to win the first diamond trick with the Ace, in order to provide additional entries into Dummy, so that the fifth club might be established for a discard of his second losing spade.

The correct method of play was to lead clubs to the second trick, discarding the heart.
